

BIRD TREKS

TRINIDAD & TOBAGO

ASA WRIGHT NATURE CENTRE & SEA TURTLES!

Dates Tuesday, 10 May through Thursday, 19 May 2011: 10 days and 9 nights in Birding and Nature Paradise, very close to South America!

We'll visit The Asa Wright Nature Centre, which is located at 1200 feet in Trinidad's North Range. Asa Wright is a place of luxuriant beauty and home to an important and easily observed colony of rare Oilbirds. Birding any time of the day (or night) from the veranda is an unforgettable experience.

Coroni Marsh by boat, for an excursion filled with Scarlet Ibis, many additional long-legged waders, and lots of pleasant surprises (perhaps a potoo).

The Blue Waters Inn on Tobago, with side trips to Little Tobago Island for nesting seabirds and to the Rain Forest Preserve for the beautiful White-tailed Sabrewing. The snorkeling at Blue Waters is FANTASTIC!

Some of the many birds that we may see include . . .

Little Tinamou	Southern Lapwing

TRINIDAD & TOBAGO

10 - 19 May 2011

On one of the first few evenings on Trinidad, we will have a special added attraction as we include a nighttime visit to the nesting beaches of the spectacular Leatherback Sea Turtle. Conditions permitting, we will experience one of the most remarkable moments in the natural world as we watch these incredible creatures excavate nest sites and lay their eggs, before returning to their ocean world. This is something that cannot be experienced earlier in the season, as the turtles have not yet begun nesting.

DAY AGENDA

- 1 We typically arrive in the afternoon or evening at Trinidad's Piarco International Airport in the capital city of Port-of-Spain, then transfer by van to the Asa Wright Nature Centre and Lodge. We'll settle in for our first of SIX nights at Asa Wright, probably to the calls of a Ferruginous Pygmy-Owl and Tink Frogs.
- 2 We have five entire days to explore the varied habitats in and around Asa Wright. These include the grounds with its feeders and beautiful plantings, numerous local trails, and day trips to a variety of wetlands and other habitats. If this is your first tropical experience you could easily see 20 or more life birds from the veranda before breakfast, including Violaceous Trogon, Channel-billed Toucan, Chestnut Woodpecker, Bearded Bellbird, Rufous-browed Peppershrike, and Bay-headed Tanager. On a typical day, birding will be offered before and after breakfast, with another walk following our afternoon siesta. All of these walks are optional, as you may choose to bird from the veranda, take a swim in the crystal-clear natural pool, or explore on your own.
- 3 Early in the day we'll hike to Dunstan Cave to view the unique nocturnal Oilbird, a species that you are unlikely to see at any other time in your life! The afternoon will be spent exploring the grounds for local specialties, perhaps looking for the small flock of Trinidad Piping-Guans that has been nearby for the past few years. Later this afternoon we will enjoy a special added attraction as we include a nighttime visit to Matura Beach, on the East Coast of Trinidad, to witness the nesting of the Leatherback Sea Turtles. Your local guides are affiliated with an award-winning, world-renowned conservation group that patrols this 12-mile stretch of pristine beach. Conditions permitting, tour participants will experience one of the most remarkable moments in the natural world as you watch these incredible creatures -- the largest of all sea turtles --- crawl up onto the sand, excavate nests and lay their eggs, before returning to their ocean world. I have done this several times. It is an evening to remember.

- 4 En route to Caroni Marsh, we'll visit sewage ponds and rice fields for a nice variety of aquatic species that has included rarities such as Little Egret, Saffron Finch, and Long-winged Harrier on past tours. We will take an afternoon boat ride on Caroni Marsh, where the main spectacle is the flight of thousands of Scarlet Ibis and other long-legged waders from their feeding grounds to their mangrove roosting areas. We may also see Gray Potoo, Bicolored Conebill, White-cheeked Pintail, Clapper Rail, and Red-capped Cardinal. Our drive home through the rice fields has produced great looks at Barn Owls. Dinner awaits upon our return to Asa Wright.
- 5 We will spend a full day at Nariva Swamp on Trinidad's East Coast. This is Trinidad's largest freshwater herbaceous swamp, dotted with Moriche Palms and the unique stilt-rooted rhizophora mangrove. New species that we may see en route to Nariva include Savannah Hawk, Red-breasted Blackbird, Southern Lapwing, White-headed Marsh-Tyrant, and Green-rumped Parrotlet. At the marsh we'll look for Pinnated Bittern, Pearl Kite, Purple Gallinule, and Wattled Jacana, with an excellent possibility for Red-bellied Macaw and Crimson-crested Woodpecker. What a day!
- 6 I meet with the local guides upon arrival at Asa Wright to determine the exact schedule of activities during our incredible week. We may change things around between one day and another, but it will always be for your benefit. Every evening after the checklist we will review the itinerary for the following day. We will visit all of the above locations, and possibly one or two others. And the grounds at Asa Wright are so productive and beautiful that we allow time for exploring locally. For example, we don't want to miss the mid-day soaring White Hawks and Ornate Hawk-Eagle, the late day Short-tailed Nighthawk, or the after-dinner night exploration walk that is always exciting and educational. Then there is swimming in the natural pool in the heat of the afternoon, tea at 4 PM, rum punch at 6 PM, and three incredible meals each day. A truly magical place!
- 7 This morning we leave Asa Wright and fly to Trinidad's sister island of Tobago. This island forms the final link in the chain of mountain ranges extending from Venezuela, on the edge of the South American Continental Shelf. After birding the Bon Accord Wetlands near the airport, where we have found Western Reef-Heron and Little Egret on recent tours, we'll go to Grafton Estate for a nice mixture of songbirds, hummingbirds, and chachalacas. Late in the afternoon we move into the Blue Waters Inn for our next three nights. We will explore the grounds and become acquainted with some new birds on the shores of Batteaux Bay. We'll also enjoy Blue-crowned Motmots that have the intriguing habit of roosting atop our porch lights.

- 8 Today's plan is to visit Little Tobago Island by glass-bottom boat. Little Tobago is one of Trinidad's most important wildlife sanctuaries, with nesting colonies of Red-billed Tropicbird, Red-footed and Brown Boobies, and Brown Noddy. We are likely to see all of these species plus Magnificent Frigatebird, Blue-crowned Motmot, and Venezuelan Flycatcher. Hawksbill and Green Sea Turtles are possible during our short boat crossing and sometimes from the dock. There will be ample opportunity for exploring the reef and its inhabitants from shore or by boat.
- 9 Our final adventure on Tobago is a visit to the Rainforest Preserve at an elevation of 2000 feet. We are likely to see Rufous-tailed Jacamar, Blue-backed Manakin, White-tailed Sabrewing, and Yellow-legged Thrush, plus additional forest-interior specialties. Green Kingfisher is possible near the river. We'll return to the Blue Waters Inn for another night on the shores of Batteaux Bay.
- 10 We'll make an early transfer to the Tobago Airport and an early flight back to Trinidad. Flights home can be scheduled for mid-morning or later.

NOTE The evening at Matura Beach to see the nesting of the Leatherback Sea Turtles is truly an experience to remember. Each female turtle chooses an appropriate location, digs a hole with her back flippers, and deposits her eggs. She then covers the eggs and camouflages the area, to deter predators. Her final task is to walk back into the ocean, her job finished for the night. WOW!
